

Prof Gideon Horn. Specialist area: Logistics and Supply Chain management

Prof Gideon Horn is currently Head of Department: Logistics at the Nelson Mandela Metropolitan University (NMMU) in Port Elizabeth. He received a DCom (Economics) degree from the NMMU in 1991 and has been lecturing for the past 31 years.

Over and above his lecturing responsibilities in Logistics and Supply Chain Management, he serves as promoter for Master's students at the NMMU and external moderator for Master's and Doctoral candidates for various other tertiary institutions. He also lectures Managerial Economics on the NMMU's MBA and PDBA programmes. He has published in several peer reviewed journals and read papers at numerous national and international conferences.

Prof Horn is actively involved in facilitating various short courses and training workshops offered at the NMMU and at various companies. He is the programme coordinator for the Advanced Diploma in Business Studies; the academic head for the Diploma in Supply Chain Development which was developed at the request of Nestlé South Africa; serves on the NMMU Tender Adjudication Committee and on the NMMU Central Timetable Committee; and is a member of the NMMU Maritime Task team driven by the VC.